To whom it may concern,

I am writing to speak favorably of Kenzie Van Lanen. I have known her for 4.5 years as a Coworker, classmate, and roommate at Northern Michigan University (NMU).

We met in our first year on campus. We have since then formed a friendship. We have had shared classes together in which we have had study groups together. I have also seen her as a coworker both peer and as a subordinate. Going into our second year we become roommates.

There is no doubt in my mind that Kenzie will bring valuable skills and experience to the team. Over the course of knowing Kenzie I have got to witness her flexibility, quick learning, and her creativity along with growth in patience and understanding.

I have seen Kenzie in many different job positions. She is able to self manage with very little to no direction. She often takes extra opportunities offered to her, including coming in on days off or opportunities to advance.

I have seen her grow in patience and understanding in both the workplace and classroom. She has gained more knowledge that seeing things from other people's perspective can help de-escalate and come to a common goal.

I have been in the same workplace or classes with her repetitively. Kenzie always seems to work hard and do the best she can.

Regards,
